DEFENCE of the AMERICANS.

Mr. URBAN,

YOUR anonymous correſpondent, has declaimed on a ſubject, which by an unhappy combination of ignorance and obſtinacy, has become very like a bone of contention between the young and the old provinces of this great common-wealth.

It ſeldom happens in diſputes of any kind, but that one ſide or the other lay the foundations of their arguments on error; it happens more particularly ſo with your angry correſpondent, for whoſe information I will beg leave to give a ſhort ſketch of the Britiſh conſtitution.

The Britiſh ſtate or empire conſiſts of ſeveral iſlands, and other diſtant countries, aſunder in different parts of the globe, but all united in allegiance to one Prince, and to the common law (Scotland excepted) as it exiſted in the old provinces or mother country, before the colonies or new provinces were formed. The prince, with a ſelect parliament, or aſſembly, make the legiſlative power of and for each province within itſelf. Where vicinity made it convenient, ſeveral iſlands and provinces were at ſundry times conſolidated, and repreſented by one parliament, as the iſle of Wight, Cornwall, Wales, Cheſhire, Durham, and Scotland; by which means all Great-Britain and its contiguous iſles, are unitedly repreſented in one aſſembly in parliament. It has not as yet been thought proper to unite Ireland to the old provinces, though lying very near; nor any of the provinces of America, which lie at a great diſtance. But notwithſtanding this ſtate of ſeparate aſſemblies, the allegiance of the diſtant provinces to the crown will remain for ever unſhaken, while they enjoy the right of Engliſhmen; that is, with the conſent of their ſovereign, the right of legiſlation each for themſelves; for this puts them on an exact level, in this reſpect, with their fellow ſubjects in the old provinces, and better than this they could not be by any change in their power. But if the old provinces ſhould often exerciſe the right of making laws for the new, they would probably grow as reſtleſs as the Corſicans, when they perceived they were no longer fellow ſubjects, but the ſubjects of ſubjects.

To illuſtrate this matter by a compariſon: Should it happen, through the revolutions of time, that ſome future king ſhould make choice of Ireland for his ſeat of government, and that the parliament of that kingdom, with his majeſty's concurrence, ſhould aſſume the right of taxing the people of England, would the people of England quietly acquieſce, or implicitly pay obedience to laws made by virtue of ſuch aſſumed right? And yet, as there is no law in being to prevent his majeſty from making any part of his dominions the ſeat of his government, the caſe is by no means foreign to the preſent queſtion.

The laws made here to tax the Americans affect them as a diſtinct body, in which the law makers are in no manner whatever comprehended; whereas the laws made to tax Great-Britain, affect alike every member who gives his concurrence to ſuch law. And hence ariſes the eſſential difference between real and virtual repreſentations, ſo much agitated.

Your correſpondent obſerves, "that we are loaded with "130 millions of debt; great part of which was contracted "by defending the Americans, and therefore that they are "bound in gratitude, &c." Were this argument of weight, and were the right of taxing to follow the obligation of defence, we have expended more than the whole ſum on various occaſions, in defence of the balance of power on the continent. Will your correſpondent, for that reaſon, argue, that Great-Britain has a right of taxing her friends in Germany? Hanover, for inſtance, was formerly ſaid to have coſt this nation immenſe ſums for its defence; and Hanover is a diſtrict under the obedience of the king of Great-Britain. Will it follow that we have any right to tax Hanover, or Hanover, in gratitude for the ſums we have expended in her behalf, ſhould implicitly give up her ancient rights? Upon the whole, the point in diſpute does not depend on gratitude or defence, but on the right of Engliſhmen to give their own money with their own conſent. While the Americans were in poſſeſſion of that right, or thought themſelves in poſſeſſion of it, every requiſition for that purpoſe by the king or his miniſters was chearfully complied with; but ſince that right, by the miſtaken policy of one man, has been brought in queſtion; murmuring and diſcontent has ſucceeded, and every artifice is now practiced to withold ſums levid by a new mode; which had they been demanded in the old way, would have been willingly granted.

I am, Sir, &c. A. B.

A True Character of an HONEST MAN.

HE looks not to what he might do, but what he ſhould. Juſtice is his firſt guide; the ſecond law of his Actions, is expedience. He would rather complain than offend; and hates ſin more for the indignity of it, than the danger. His ſimple uprightneſs works in him, that confidence, which oftentimes wrongs him, and gives advantages to the ſubtil; when he rather pities their faithleſneſs, than repents of his credulity. He hath but one heart, and that lies open to ſight; and were it not for diſcretion, he never thinks ought whereof he would avoid a witneſs. His word is his parchment; and his yea, his oath; which he will not violate for fear, or for loſs. The miſs-haps of following events, may cauſe him to blame his providence, but can never cauſe him to eat his promiſe; Neither ſaith he! This I ſaw not; but, This I ſaid. When he is made his friend's executor, he defrays debts, pays legacies, and ſcorneth to gain by orphans, or to ranſack graves; and therefore will be true to his dead friend, becauſe he ſees him not. All his dealings are juſt and above-board: He bewrays the fault of what he ſells, and reſtores the overſeen gain of falſe reckoning. He eſteems a Bribe venemous, though it comes gilded over with the colour of gratuity. His cheeks are never ſtained with the bluſhes of recantation; neither doth his tongue faulter, to make good a lie, with the ſecret gloſſes of double, of reſerved ſenſes: And when his name is traduced, his innocency bears him out with courage: Then, lo, he goes on the plain way of truth, and will either triumph in his integrity, or ſuffer with it. His conſcience over-rules his providence; ſo, as in all things, good or ill, he reſpects the nature of the action, not the ſequel. If he ſees what he muſt do, let God ſee what ſhall follow. He never loadeth himſelf with burthens above his ſtrength, beyond his will; and once bound, what he can, he will do; but neither doth he well, but what he can do. His ear is the ſanctuary of his abſent friend's name, of his preſent friend's ſecret; neither of them can miſcarry in his truſt. He remembers the wrongs of his youth, and repays them with that uſury which he himſelf would not take. He would rather want than borrow; and beg, than not to pay. His fair conditions are without diſſimulation; and he adores actions above words. Finally, he hates falſhood worſe than death; he is a faithful client of truth; no man's enemy; and it is a queſtion, Whether, not more another man's friend than his own? And if there were no Heaven, yet he would be virtuous.

A PASTORAL.

YE nymphs and ſwains that haunt the verdant field,
Whoſe hearts to love a willing homage yield,
To loftier numbers raiſe the rural voice,
In notes alternate ſing a wedded choice:
Love's God aſſents, nor Hymen ſhall delay,
To join the numbers of the nuptial lay.

VIRGINS.

What rigid laws our feeble ſex reſtrain,
The paſſive ſlaves of cuſtom's tyrant reign?
From the fond mother's arms the trembling fair
Still clinging to the mother's arms to tear,
And to th' embraces of the burning youth
Conſign her virgin innocence and truth;
What harſher deed could brutal rage inſpire,
Whilſt the ſtorm'd city flam'd with hoſtile fire?

YOUTHS.

Mild are the laws which Hymen's bands enjoin,
Emblem on earth of happineſs divine;
Hence ſpring the joys that human ills beguile;
Parental love; th' endearing infant's ſmile;
"Life's ſocial charities;"—in the nuptial hour,
Heav'n doth its choiceſt gifts on mortals pour:
Love's God aſſents, nor Hymen ſhall delay,
To join the numbers of the nuptial lay.

VIRGINS.

As the fair flow'r by garden walls immur'd,
(Its ſweetneſs by its privacy ſecur'd)
Safe from the herd, nor by the ploughſhare torn,
In ſecret ſpreads its beauties to the morn,
To ev'ry nymph, to ev'ry ſhepherd dear,
It blooms the fav'rite of the young and fair;
But when its gather'd beauties 'gin to fade,
And the fall'n ſtalk upon the earth is laid,
Nor any nymph's, nor any ſhepherd's care,
It dies neglected by the young and fair.
Thus while in virgin innocence array'd,
Nor to the ſenſe of marriage joys betray'd,
The ſingle maid her liberty maintains,
She lives the fav'rite of the nymphs and ſwains;
But when (the bloom of virgin honour ſhed)
The nymph comes bluſhing from the bridal bed,
Nor to the ſwains, nor to her fellows dear,
She lives neglected by the young and fair.

YOUTHS.

As the ſmall vine that ſolitary ſtands
A feeble ſtalk amid the naked lands,
Its head ne'er raiſes, never can produce
The gen'rous grape for pleaſure or for uſe,
But prone declines its body to the earth,
Outſtretch'd upon the ſod that gave it birth,
Nor any nymph's, nor any ſhepherd's care,
It pines neglected ſtill from year to year;
But if in marriage bonds it ſhall be join'd
To the tall elm for its ſupport deſign'd,
Dear to each nymph, to ev'ry ſhepherd dear,
It cultivated thrives from year to year.
The maidens thus, the nuptial joys unknown,
Sighs, pines, and ſinks to barren age alone;
But when mature for Hymen's ſacred rites,
If ſome warm youth her tender love invites,
Dear to her huſband, to her parents dear,
She bleſt and bleſſing lives from year to year.

VIRGINS.

Myſterious God of wedlock's holy rites,
Sublime and ſacred ſource of pure delights,
To thy dread name we'll join to raiſe the ſong,
To thee doth ev'ry ſocial joy belong.

BOTH.

Patron of virtuous, of connubial love,
The next bleſt ſtate on earth to that above,
Thy genial influence on thy vot'ries ſhed,
And crown with laſting bliſs the nuptial bed.

Remarkable STORY of Mr. DRYDEN.

MR. Dryden, with all his understanding, was weak enough to be fond of judicial astrology, and used to calculate the nativity of his children.—When his lady was in labour with his son Charles, he being told it would be decent to withdraw, laid his watch on the table, begging one of the ladies then present, in a most solemn manner, to take exact notice of the very minute the child was born, which she did, and acquainted him with it.—About a week after, when his lady was pretty well recovered, Mr. Dryden took occasion to tell her that he had been calculating the child's nativity, and observed, with grief, that he was born in an evil hour, for Jupiter, Venus, and the Sun, were all under the earth, and the lord of his ascendant afflicted with a hateful square of Mars and Saturn.—If he lives to arrive at the eighth year, says he, "he will go near to die a violent death on his birth day; but if he should escape, as I see but small hopes, he will in the twenty-third year be under the very same evil direction; and if he should escape that also, the thirty-third or thirty-fourth year is, I fear"——Here he was interrupted by the immoderate grief of his lady, who could no longer bear calamity prophesied to befal her son.—The time we last name, and August was the inauspicious month in which young Dryden was to enter into the eighth year of his age.—The court being in progress, and Mr. Dryden at leisure, he was invited to the country-seat of the Earl of Berkshire, his brother-in-law, to keep the long vacation with him at Charlton in Wilts; his lady was invited to her uncle Mordaunt's to pass the remainder of the summer. When they came to divide the children, lady Elizabeth would have him take John, and suffer her to take Charles; but Mr. Dryden was too absolute, and they parted in anger; he took Charles with him, and she was obliged to be content with John. When the fatal day came, the anxiety of the lady's spirits occasioned such an effervescence of blood, as threw her into so violent a fever, that her life was despaired of, till a letter came from Mr. Dryden, reproving her for her womanish credulity, and assuring her that her child was well, which recovered her spirits, and in six weeks after she received an eclaircissement of the whole affair.——Mr. Dryden, either through fear of being reckoned superstitious, or thinking it a science beneath his study, was extremely cautious of letting any one know that he was a dealer in astrology; therefore could not excuse his absence, on his son's anniversary, from a general hunting-match Lord Berkshire had made, to which all the adjacent gentlemen were invited. When he went out, he took care to fix the boy a double exercise in the Latin tongue, which he taught his children himself, with a strict charge not to stir out of the room till his return, well knowing the task he had left him would take up longer time. Charles was performing his duty, in obedience to his father, but, as ill fate would have it, the flag made towards the house; and the noise alarming the servants, they hasted out to see the sport. One of them took young Dryden by the hand, and led him out to see it also, when just as they came to the gate, the flag being at bay with the dogs, made a bold push, and leaped over the court-wall, which was very low, and very old; and the dogs following, threw down a part of the wall 10 yards in length, under which Charles Dryden lay buried.—He was immediately dug out, and after six weeks languishing in a dangerous way, he recovered; so far Dryden's prediction was fulfilled: In the twenty-third year of his age Charles fell from the top of an old tower belonging to the Vatican at Rome, occasioned by a swimming in his head, with which he was seized, the heat of the day being excessive.—He again recovered, but was ever after in a languishing sickly state. In the thirty-third year of his age, being returned to England, he was unhappily drowned at Windsor.——He had with another gentleman swam twice over the Thames; but returning a third time, it was supposed he was taken with the cramp, because he called for help, tho' too late. Thus the father's calculation proved but too prophetical.

Smart REPARTEES of two Ambassadors.

JOHN Basilides, Czar of Muscovy, a proud and cruel prince, had, as some historians relate, a nail drove into the head of an ambassador from a Prince in Italy, who was covered in his presence. However, when Jerom Bole, the ambassador of Elizabeth, Queen of England, appeared before him, he boldly put on his hat, and withdrew without making the least motion to take it off. The Czar asked him, If he was ignorant of the treatment another ambassador had received for a like temerity? I well know it, answered the Englishman; but I am the ambassador of a Queen who always keeps her head covered, and does not suffer with impunity an affront to be offered to any of her ministers. The Czar, generous enough to admire this boldness, cried out, turning to his courtiers; 'There's a brave man, who dares to behave and speak nobly for the honour and interests of his Sovereign! Which of you would do the same for me?'

In 1586, Philip II. King of Spain, had sent the young Constable of Castile to Rome, to felicitate Sixtus V. on his exaltation. This Pope, displeased that so young an ambassador had been deputed to him, could not help saying: And well! Sir, did your Master want men, by sending to me an ambassador without a beard? 'If my Sovereign had thought, replied the proud Spaniard, that merit consisted in a beard, he would have sent you a buck-goat, and not a Gentleman as I am.'

AN ANECDOTE.

AS an instance of the honour which the British sailors think due to their calling and officers: I was told a story, by a person who served some time under Sir Charles Wager, that when that Admiral was with a fleet up the Baltic in 1726, during his stay in the road of Copenhagen, the King of Denmark was entertained one day on board the Admiral's ship, and while the company were walking the quarter deck, one sailor says to another, "Demme Jack, "do you see what an unmannerly fellow, this same King "is, why he wears his hat before the Admiral." "Why, "replies Jack, where would you have him learn manners, "I suppose he was never aboard a ship before."

Anecdote of the DUKE de CHOISEUL.

THE setting of the late peace was a long while retarded by the French refusing to pay the money due to the English for the maintenance of the French prisoners, and the peace was the most desirable thing in France; yet the King obstinately refused the payments of our demands.—The Duke de Choiseul, (Prime Minister) though drove to his ne plus ultra to furnish means to carry on the war, yet nevertheless could not prevail on him, 'till by a lucky expedient he made him sensible he was at that present time, and as long as he should delay the peace, losing immense sums of money. "Finance, (cries the Duke) will immediately "feel the happy effects of it; our manufactures (at present "drooping) will once more flourish, our ports will be crowded "with English vessels to take our wares, and our capital "and provinces will be over-run with English, whose folly "and extravagance alone in twelve months, will more than "enable us to make good the paltry sum demanded."——The King saw the rectitude of his advice and acquiesced. And the English by their behaviour have proved the Duke was no false prophet.

TO-MORROW.

TO-morrow, didst thou say!
Methought I heard Horatio say, To-morrow,
Go to—I will not hear of it—To-morrow!
'Tis a sharper, who stakes his penury
Against thy plenty—who takes thy ready cash,
And pays thee nought but wishes, hopes, and promises,
The currency of idiots.—Injurious bankrupt,
That gulls the easy creditor!—To-morrow!
It is a period no where to be found,
In all the hoary registers of time,
Unless perchance in the fool's calendar.
Wisdom disclaims the word, nor holds society
With those who owe it. No my Horatio,
'Tis Fancy's child, and folly is its father;
Wrought of such stuff as dreams are; and baseless
As the fantastice visions of the evening.
But soft, my friend—arrest the present moments;
For be assured, they all are arrant tell-tales;
And tho' their flight be silent, and their path
Trackless, as the wing'd couriers of the air,
They post to heav'n, and there record thy folly.
Because, tho' station'd on th' important watch,
Thou, like a sleeping, faithless centinel,
Didst let them pass unnotic'd, unimprov'd.
And know, for that thou slumber'dst on the guard,
Thou shalt be made to answer at the bar
For every fugitive: and when thou thus
Shalt stand impleaded at the high tribunal
Of hood-wink't Justice, who shall tell thy audit!
Then stay the present instant, dear Horatio;
Imprint the marks of wisdom on its wings.
'Tis of more worth than kingdoms! far more precious
Than all the crimson treasures of life's fountain.
Oh! let it not elude thy grasp, but like
The good old patriarch upon record,
Hold the fleet angel fast, untill he bless thee.

On INGRATITUDE.

IN ev'ry country, ev'ry age, we find
Some kind of villainy no law can bind.
Murder with equal death her fine shall pay,
And low the rapid course of lust shall stay;
Theft shall expire, when justice lifts the scale,
Treason shall groan, and blasphemy look pale.
From crimes like these, whole multitudes abstain,
Or friends of virtue, or the slaves of gain.
But yet no law, divine or human, can
Restrain the treachery of man to man.
Here vile ingratitude unpunish'd sits,
Accepting benefits she still forgets;
There falsehood, cover'd with a train of lies,
Would cheat an Argus with his hundred eyes.
Mischief still guarded with a thousand darts,
Plays in security her different parts:
And, lo! the man in whom those crimes unite,
Shews, beyond doubt, that justice wants her sight.

HALIFAX, APRIL 7.

LAST Friday evening came on here, and continued all that night and best part of the next day, a most violent storm from the South East, attended with snow and rain, which as the tides were extremely high, has done considerable damage to most of the wharves in town, and several stores adjoining them. The damage sustained by the inhabitants of this town, are difficult for us to enumerate: The following are a few amongst many, of which we have not yet learnt the particulars, viz. Three of the windows of St. Paul's church blown down, and entirely demolished; a breast work belonging to the navy yard partly destroyed; and other damage, it is said to a considerable amount. Two houses in Gottingen, and one house in Irish town, blown down and destroyed; several vessels and boats were sunk and drove on shore, and others drove from their anchors. Besides many articles of considerable value wash'd from the different wharves. It is supposed the loss occasioned by this storm cannot be less than 3000l.

We hear advice is received, that his Excellency Lord William Campbell, Governor of this Province, is now on his passage for this place, in his Majesty's ship the Mermaid, Captain Smith.

On Monday last was brought here from Margaret's Bay, where he was apprehended, Augustine Detouche, a Frenchman, who, in October last, made his escape from his Majesty's ship Mermaid, then in this harbour, where he was in custody for the murder of Lawrence Castinan, at the Bay of Chaleur, in Canada, in the month of July last, and in consequence of a proclamation being immediately issued by his Honour the Lieutenant Governor of this province, and a reward offered for apprehending him, he was pursued along this coast, and taken at Margaret's Bay, from whence he was committed to our goal, till an opportunity offers for removing him to Quebec, where he is to take his trial.

NEW-YORK, May 2. Thursday night last Francis Stephens, Esq; Store-keeper and Pay-master of his Majesty's Ordnance in this city, was married to Miss Polly Reade, daughter of the Hon. Joseph Reade, Esq; of this place, an amiable and accomplished young lady.

Captain Campbell from North-Carolina, in eight days, informs us, that Captain Whitemarsh, in a ship belonging to Piscataqua, from Jamaica, had put into Cape-Look-Out, in distress, having been robb'd of all his cash, most of his cloathing, and part of his cargo, by a Spanish vessel off the West end of Cuba.

The Boston papers say, That three regiments of foot are soon expected at Halifax, from England, and five at Georgia.

Capt. Chambers from Bristol, on the 22d of April, in Lat. 34, 17, spoke a snow from South-Carolina, bound for Vigo.

May 16. By the Captains Tilly and Fowks, from St. Croix, we hear of an excessive drought at that island. Some of their cane pieces have taken fire by mere accident and been consumed, and very few of them which were standing, like to produce any thing.

PHILADELPHIA, May 2. In the last snow storm, five vessels were lost on the shoals of Sinepuxent and Assetigue, one of which belonged to New-York, homeward bound from Carolina, with stores; two to Accomack, one to Carolina, Captain Godwin, bound to this place; the fifth unknown.—Most of the people on board these vessels, were either drowned, or perished in the cold.

CHARLES-TOWN, JUNE 6th.

MR. De St. Pierre who has lately made a Settlement at New-Bourdeaux, Hillsborough Township, has been deputed by the Inhabitants of that Place to make Application to the Governor in Council, for Leave to establish a public Market there every Saturday, which, we hear, has been granted; they have also applied for Leave to build a Bridge over the Long-Canes River.——The said Gentleman is appointed Captain over his French Settlers, and his Settlement bids fair to flourish in a little while, as he has found that Savannah River is navigable all the Way up for flat Boats, and he and his People intend to plant Vines, so that in a short Time they expect to make as good Wine there as any where in Europe.

The Commissioners of Pilotage, have contracted with Messrs. Bonfall and Smith, for covering with Copper the Dome of the Beacon or Light House, now erecting by Mr. Samuel Cardy on Middle-Bay Island near the Bar; also, for casing with Copper and gilding the Ball intended to be fixed on the Top of that very useful Edifice, which, we are told will be compleated in less than three Months, being now upwards of Eighty Feet from the Surface: The whole Fabric is to be One Hundred and Seventeen Feet in Height.

We learn from New-Providence, that Edwards Davis, Esq; formerly Temporary Collector of the Customs here, is appointed Collector of the Customs for that Island.

Last Sunday his Majesty's Packet-Boat the Grantham, Captain Jones, arrived here from Pensacola; in whom came Passengers, Nicholas Sutherland and David Hope, Esqrs. Captains; and John Lennox, Esq; a Lieutenant, in his Majesty's 21st Regiment; the former going to East-Florida, and the two latter for England.

The Hon. William Young, Esq; His Majesty's first Commissioner and Receiver-General of the Monies arising from the Sale and Disposal of Lands in the Southern Carribbee Islands, we hear is appointed Lieutenant Governor of Dominico.

The last Vessels from the West-Indies, bring Accounts of so great a Drought in the Islands, that many considerable Cane Plantations, particularly in Barbados, are entirely destroyed by it and the Ants.

The Royal Hospital of Greenwich in Jamaica, suddenly took Fire on the 22th of last Month, supposed by Lightning, and in a few Hours was reduced to a Heap of Ruins, baffling the utmost Efforts of His Majesty's Seamen, encouraged by the Presence of the Admiral to save it. The Navy and Victualling Stores were at the same Time in great Danger of being destroyed.

By the Honourable WILLIAM BULL, Esq; Lieutenant-Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the said Province.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it hath been represented unto me, by Lewis Valentine Fuser, Esq; Commander of his Majesty's Troops in this Province, That several of the Soldiers under his Command, have lately deserted, and do still continue to desert; and that they are harboured and concealed by some Persons, to the Detriment of his Majesty's Service: For Prevention whereof, and in order to deter People from harbouring and concealing them in future, I HAVE thought fit, by the Advice of his Majesty's Honourable Council, to issue this my Proclamation, hereby requiring all Magistrates and Constables, or other civil Officers, in Obedience to the Directions of the Act of Parliament for punishing Mutiny and Desertion in America, to apprehend, or cause to be apprehended, all Persons whom they shall reasonably suspect to be such Deserters, and finding them on Examination to be such, to commit them to the Goal in Charles-Town, and to transmit an Account thereof to Me, or to the Commanding Officer of the Forces within this Province, as they will answer the Neglect thereof at their Peril.

AND WHEREAS it is provided in and by the said Act, That if any Person shall harbour, conceal, or assist any Deserter from his Majesty's Service within his Majesty's Dominions in America, knowing him to be such, the Person so offending, shall forfeit for every such Offence the Sum of Five Pounds Sterling; or if any Person shall knowingly detain, buy or exchange any Arms, Cloaths, Caps, or other Furniture belonging to the King, from any Soldier or Deserter, or any other Person, upon any Account or Pretence whatsoever, within his Majesty's said Dominions in America, the Persons so offending shall forfeit for every such Offence, the Sum of Five Pounds Sterling.

THE Remainder of the LAW BOOKS, that were not SOLD at Auction, on Tuesday last, are now to be sold at private Sale, by CHARLES CROUCH.

It is required of Stewards that they be found faithful; and is that enough? NO! For if they stop there, they are but unprofitable Stewards, having done no more than was their Duty to do.—What further is to be done? Let your Light so shine before Men that they may see your good Works, and glorify our Father, which is in Heaven.—To such Conduct there is a Reward annexed; i. e. Whose turneth many to Righteousness, shall shine as the Stars in Heaven, for ever and ever.

WITH these Views Mr. STRATON will add some Hints, after his Lectures for the Month of July 1768, (on ARITHMETIC, GEOMETRY and ARCHITECTURE) concerning the most likely Method to lead a sensible and an happy Life; the Road that some weary themselves in a vain Search after, that will I, with God's Help, plainly lay open before you, and shew not only why ye vainly weary yourselves; because ye search amiss: But also how to search aright, i. e. so to ask that ye may obtain, so to seek that you may find. The Lectures for July to begin on Saturday the second, and to be continued the succeeding Thursdays and Saturdays, precisely at Four in the Afternoon. Tickets for that Month to be had of the Printer, and the Subscriber. O. STRATON.

From the British Academy on the Green, June 23, 1768.

THE subscriber intreats all persons indebted to him, either by bonds, notes, or book debt, to settle the same to his satisfaction on or before the first day of September next; as also the outstanding debts due on the books of William Cartner, of Ashley-ferry, as he is invested with a proper power to receive the same, otherwise, he will be under the disagreeable necessity of putting them in suit. And as it is not in his power to make personal application to his country friends and customers, he hopes they will pay due regard to this, being the last notice.

JUST IMPORTED in Captain Schermerhorn, from New-York, and to be sold by CHARLES CROUCH, in Elliott-street, EDWARD JOYCE's famous Great American BALSAM, made in Long-Island, superior by Trial, for its Use and Efficacy, to any imported from Europe.

IT cures all Manner of Wounds, if curable; the most inveterate Ulcers and Fistulas, by injecting into the Canals and Sinews of Ulcers and Fistulas afore-mentioned. In Wounds, you cure by dipping a Pledget of Lint in the Balsam, and bind up the Wound, uniting the Lips of the Wound as Conveniency offers, renewing once a Day, till cured.

It scatters all Manner of Swellings, that are fit to be scattered; but Abcess, and such under that Denomination, are often called Biles, must come to Supperation when it is drawn, and the corrupted Matter taken off it, quickly heals.

For a Cold, attended with violent Coughing, Inflamation of the Glands, Hoarseness, and excessive Force for Respiration, Pains in the Breast, and even the strongest Pleuratick Symptoms, it gives immediate Ease, by taking in the Morning fasting, a Tea Spoonful of the Balsam, with two or three Tea Spoonfuls of Honey, or for Want of Honey, Sugar.

For violent Falls whereby the internal Parts may be hurt, and a Rexis of the Vessels, that often bring on a Bleeding at Mouth, Nose, &c. it stops the Blood, and scatters the coagulated Blood, and makes it more fluid to pass away.

In Sprains of the Limbs, Contractions of the Ligaments, Tendons, by anointing with the Balsam before a Fire, it supples and relaxes them to their natural Functions.

Pains in the Joints in the upper and lower Limbs, by the same Method, it takes away by a few Applications.

Even in the Gout and Rheumatism it gives immediate Ease, but I don't say it is an infallible Cure.

N. B. It cures Consumptions that are not of long standing, if the Patient is within the Age of Forty Years, by taking a Tea Spoonful of the Balsam, Morning and Night, drinking half a Pint of warm fresh Broth after each Dose, during the Term of Forty Days.

☞ It has cured a Number of People in New-York, whose Names are affixed to the Directions, and a Bottle of it having been brought into this Province the latter End of last Winter, it cured several Persons of violent Coughs, &c. which were of a long standing.
